GEO. H. FRANK & CO.
 Maysville's Foremost Clothiers

Let us forget our duties to our fellow man, here is a picture that is really worth taking one look at and then go and see if any such cases are in our midst before we lean back in our easy chairs in homes of plenty without taking a thought of some one in less fortunate circumstances.

Kate Pendleton, 80, white, no residence, no occupation, no visible means of support, no family, is found dead in the snow in a part—in Cherokee Park—near the heights from which several Tudor palaces and sundry imitations of other styles of palatial architecture of European countries look down upon a panorama of snow-covered forest and silvery stream.

America is not a land of contrasts, we are sometimes told. There are fabulously rich Americans, but no poor ones as Europe and Asia understand poverty. But there are exceptions. Kate Pendleton, "police court character," as the Courier-Journal's report calls her, was one. As penniless and unbefriended as a beggar in the days and in the land of Saul of Tarsus—but not as importunate—frees, thinly clad and without food, within sight of the most plutocratic and aristocratic homes of a thriving American city.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of Mrs. Annie Laurie Galbreath, daughter of the late James M. Redden and Anna Hill Redden, and wife of Clarence Foster Galbreath, who passed to the Great Beyond Wednesday, February 9, 1916, at her home at South Lebanon, O., after a brief illness of grip. God gave her to us thirty-six years ago, and has taken her to be happy in Heavenly love with her little son (George Bruce) who for most ten years has been in the fold of Him who doth all things well. Annie Laurie's devoted love for her little son continued beyond expression.

A devoted and faithful wife and mother, finding her pleasure in the work God designed for her. A faithful Christian, being a member of the Central Presbyterian church since a child of nine years, which work was her happiness and pleasure. Annie Laurie leaves a devoted and faithful husband to mourn her loss, and to be guided by her hand unseen until they are together again in the Home God has prepared for us all.

We miss the from our home, dear. We miss thee from thy place; A shadow o'er our lives is cast, We miss the sunshine of thy face. We miss the kind and willing hand. Thy fond and earnest care; Our home is dark without thee. We miss thee everywhere.

You are not forgotten, Annie Laurie nor shall you ever be. We shall always remember thee.

We extend our sincere and heartfelt thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbors for the sympathy and kind expressions of love extended to us in our late sorrow and bereavement in the loss of our dearly beloved wife, daughter and sister.

NEW RISING IN MEXICO HATCHED—EXPECT VILLA IN VASCON.

Douglas, Ariz., February 17.—Mobilization of troops of the de facto Mexican government at Hermosillo and other cities in the southern portion of Sonora has been ordered by General P. Elias Calles, military governor, to meet an invasion of the state said to be planned by Francisco Villa. This announcement has been received here.

by Ives G. Loevelier, Mexican consul.

Washington, February 17.—There were startling developments in the Mexican situation today.

First there was news of a fresh revolution being imminent in Mexico and late today the President disappointed both Democrats and Republicans by refusing to give to the Senate, as was requested in a resolution by Senator Fall, all the correspondence that has been conducted by President Wilson and the State Department regarding the Mexican situation. Instead the President through Secretary Lansing gave a "concise statement with copies of certain pertinent documents."

Senator Fall criticized the documents submitted by the White House: "This is a lot of inconsequential stuff calculated to scatter the fire of those who would criticize the President's Mexican policy," he said. "It was about what I expected, however. I did not think the administration had the nerve to make public the communications passing between the State Department and the Brazilian minister."

"The administration is evidently trying to create the impression that conditions are normal in Mexico."

"The Luring Lights"

Every girl who has experienced a desire to go on the stage will be deeply interested in "The Luring Lights," the four-act drama, featuring MISS STELLA HOBAN, which will be shown at the Gem today. This powerful production was adapted by Kalem from George H. Brennan's famous novel, "Anna Male-n." It is the story of a girl's rise from obscurity to fame, of what befalls her from the time she leaves the little country village to the day when fate directs that she shall step into the place vacated by the star. Don't fail to see "The Luring Lights."
